

Old Hickory Furniture, Made In America Since 1899

ABC News' recent segment on businesses and products that are "Made in America" is long overdue from the national news media. In these tough economic times, it is important to emphasize that small businesses are the backbone of our society and our prosperity. We at the Old Hickory Furniture Company of Shelbyville, Ind., believe that our story exemplifies the "Made in America" ethos and would make a wonderful story for your organization. Let us tell you a little bit of Old Hickory's story.

Old Hickory has forged a special relationship with the lodges of the National Park System. You will encounter our furniture in such quintessential American settings as Yellowstone, Zion, Grand Canyon and Yosemite, among many others. Many celebrities and sports figures own Old Hickory, recognizing its enduring style and comfort. Old Hickory chairs were featured in the movie "The Good Shepherd," directed by Robert DeNiro. Also, Old Hickory's rugged elegance is showcased at Disney World's Fort Wilderness Lodge. Old Hickory also lends its rugged elegance to private homes nationwide.

For almost 112 years, the Old Hickory Furniture Company has produced durable furnishings for lovers of rustic furniture around the country and the world. The sophisticated skills of our artisans in Central Indiana and time-tested simple dignity of design make Old Hickory a quality American product and trusted name in our industry. Old Hickory is proud to be a green, environmentally friendly product, made from strong, renewable hickory saplings that re-sprout naturally after harvesting. Our wood is harvested in the mountains of Tennessee and handcrafted in our Shelbyville factory. into furniture and furnishings that will last for decades.
